

What I love About being a military child

What I love about being a military child is that I get to make a lot of friends anywhere.

You also get to see many places other people might not see. I also love that when you are driving you can visit places on the road!

People think that being a military child is the worst but actually it is awesome!

You know about what is happening in the world more than maybe your friend who's parent('s) ar not in the military.

It is hard though because you have to leave your friends but you will always make new ones.

These are things I really love about being a military child.
