

Records Retention and Destruction Policy

Updated July 2023

This policy of the Virginia War Memorial Foundation (VWMF) establishes mandatory procedures for managing, maintaining, and disposing of documents and records, including electronic records, in a reasonable and lawful manner. This policy ensures that:

- All records are retained for appropriate periods and at least for any period required by applicable federal, state and local laws;
- Records under "Legal Hold" (see the Legal Holds section below) are properly maintained, including any documents subject to subpoenas in lawsuits and investigations; and
- All records not necessary for legal and business reasons are destroyed in order to reduce high cost of storing, indexing and handling the vast amount of documents and paper which would otherwise accumulate.

Responsibilities of Individual Employees/Volunteers:

- Review the Records Retention Schedule (the "schedule") attached to this Policy and determine what records and documents he/she uses and creates;
- Retain documents for the retention periods shown in the policy schedule;
- Destroy documents in the ordinary course of business at the end of the retention period outlined in the policy schedule unless there is a Legal Hold on those documents; and
- If there is a Legal Hold, retain the documents subject to the Legal Hold and fully comply with instruction given by legal counsel and/or the VWMF President (the "President").

Scope:

This policy supersedes any and all existing VWMF Records Retention or Destruction policies and procedures. It applies to:

- All VWMF employees and
- All documents and records, including electronic records, regardless of their:
 - Physical location, including all VWMF owned or leased facilities, contracted off-site storage facilities, employee residences, or mobile mediums discussed below; and
 - Medium of storage, including copies maintained on paper, microfilm, audio, computer drives, removable storage devices, cloud storage, laptop computers, cell phones, iPhone devices and home computers.

Definitions:

- Document: an all-inclusive term that refers to any written or recorded matter produced or received by an employee or volunteer, whether hard copy or electronic. Documents including, by way of example, the following: correspondence, e-mail, minutes, notes, computerized or paper calendars, appointment books, expense records, analyses, spreadsheets, drawings, diagrams, tables, data compilations, summaries, graphs, charts, reports, books of account and other financial records, invoices, purchase orders, payroll data, questionnaires, contracts, bills, checks, drafts, diaries, logs, proposals, print-outs (including e-mails), recordings, telegrams, recorded statements, films, employee files, voice messages, videos, photographs, text messages, information stored in company issued PDAs and other business documents used by the company and its personnel. Documents also include drafts and copies of any of these.
- Legal Hold: an order to cease destruction and preserve all records, regardless of form, related to the nature or subject of an existing or reasonable anticipated legal matter, including but not limited to any lawsuit, subpoena, or investigation.

Legal Holds:

Retention periods for VWMF documents pertinent to litigation or government investigations (including investigations by federal or state tax authorities) must be suspended in accordance with directives made by VWMF or its counsel through a "legal hold" or "tax hold."

A legal or tax hold suspends normal retention periods for VWMF documents due to a lawsuit or a government investigation that has commenced or may be commenced. All relevant VWMF documents subject to such legal or tax holds cannot be altered, destroyed or discarded but must be preserved. Legal and tax holds will only be removed through notification from VWMF's counsel.

Legal and tax holds will identify by type what documents must be retained. Because these holds may apply to VWMF documents beyond the official, executed copies, these directives must be reviewed carefully. For example, they may apply to drafts and any copies that have been modified (e.g., marginal notation) as well as other documents. Legal and tax holds will be communicated to appropriate VWMF personnel. Once a legal or tax hold directive is received, the recipient has the responsibility to notify the President of its receipt.

Notwithstanding the above or any established retention period, after the VWMF or any officer, director, or associate thereof has any knowledge of an actual or potential legal investigation, tax investigation, claim, proceeding or suit, any and all records that they know, or reasonably should know, may be relevant to the matter or are reasonably likely to be requested during discovery and/or are the subject of a pending discovery request, must be preserved until the matter is concluded.

A notice releasing a legal or tax hold may be issued by the VWMF's counsel stating that the events requiring the hold have been resolved and that VWMF's documents previously subject to the hold are to be retained or disposed of in accordance with the retention period(s) set forth in the Schedule.

Document Destruction Schedule & Procedures:

- Destruction of Files: Within 90 days after the expiration of the applicable retention period, documents should be disposed of by means appropriate to their nature or level of confidentiality (e.g., shredding, recycling or deleting), provided they are not subject to a Legal Hold. Documents should be destroyed in accordance with this Policy on a regular basis, but no less than annually, provided they are not subject to a Legal Hold.
- The business files of employees who are terminating their employment will be reviewed by the employee or applicable supervisor concurrent with the employee's departure/transfer. These files may either be purged, unless required to be retained in accordance with this Policy, including pursuant to a Legal Hold, or reassigned to another associate, as appropriate.
